Traverse To Government's Response

COMES NOW the Petitioner, David I. Altman, PRO SE, bringing his Traverse to the Government's Response.

The Government has provided a partial list of floppy disks which it intends to return to the Petitioner, not sending, of course, disks which contain any type of pornographic material, or disks which violate copyright laws. However, the Petitioner believes that at least one beige 3.5" floppy disk may be missing: One labeled "Marine." Now it is entirely possible that the Petitioner's memory is faulty, and no disk was labeled as such; however, it would not take very much time to ascertain as to the presence or absence of such a disk.

Additionally, there is the matter of the Jazz disks. The first is unimportant; it contains only pornography. The second, however, contains only program files (Microsoft Office, CorelDRAW, AutoCAD, and so on. These programs are backups of software the Petitioner purchased, and is entitled to keep a backup copy of; the Petitioner therefore requests that the Government provide either the disk itself or its contents.

Furthermore, the Petitioner wants to ensure that specific disks are provided to him by the Government, as listed on the attachment to this Traverse. There are certain disks which the Government may believe it can withhold; however, these disks (marked as Intellectual Property Rights violations) were either purchased by the Petitioner or obtained though other lawful means, and cannot be withheld.

Finally, there is the matter of the Petitioner's hard disk drives. To make the process easier, the Petitioner affirmatively states that he wants one - and only one - type of file from the hard disk drives: Microsoft Word (.DOC) files. These files may be given on disk, or printed out; the form isn't important, but the content is. It should be relatively easy to perform a search for such files and then print them or copy them and provide them to the Petitioner. The time frame of two weeks to one month will be sufficient. There may also be a music CD in the Petitioner's CD-ROM Drive; the Petitioner is uncertain, but that disk should be returned, as well as the Win98 Install CD-ROM.

The above should inform the Court and the Government of all actions which need to be taken in this matter. If either the Court or the Government has any questions or concerns about any of the Petitioner's statements or requests, they should contact him immediately.

WHEREFORE: The Petitioner, David I. Altman, PRO SE, respectfully requests that the Government provide the disks listed in the Attachment to this Traverse, and to provide the files and CD's requested herein.
